

Seniors Launch New Service to Help Other Seniors Find Love, Friendship, and Companionship
Laguna Woods, CA – Four women in their 60s, 70s, and 80s have come together to launch Ageless Hearts, a new matchmaking and friendship service created by seniors, for seniors.

With decades of life and love experience between them, founders Diane, Janet, Marilyn, and Amelia know firsthand how difficult it can be to face later years alone. From losing partners to living far from family, loneliness is a growing challenge among older adults — one that too often leads to isolation, depression, and even tragedy.

“We’ve seen too many of our friends struggle with loneliness. Some didn’t have kids or support systems. Others watched loved ones pass away. We realized we had to do something,” said co-founder Diane.

Ageless Hearts provides more than just dating. The service offers professional matchmaking and speed dating events, while also helping seniors connect for friendship, companionship, and everyday joys like coffee chats, walks, movies, and travel partners.

What makes Ageless Hearts unique:

Created and run entirely by seniors who understand what seniors want.

Focused on people first, business second — driven by kindness and compassion.

Welcoming both singles looking for romance and those simply seeking friendship.

“Love and connection have no age limit,” said co-founder Amelia. “Whether it’s romance, laughter, or just someone to talk to — every senior deserves to feel connected.”
